

No to segregation !

Back in nineteen sixty
In the state of Mississippi House work was done by black women
Who took care of the white children

Blacks and whites
Should have the same rights
Segregation is to blame
Because we should be the same

They decided to tell their story
Their hard work with no glory
Their friendship made them strong
To face cruelty all day long

Blacks and whites
Should have the same rights
Segregation is to blame
Because we should be the same

Why them and not others
They worked for a few dollars
One day, they became free
To have the same rights as you and me

Kathryn Stockett

La couleur des sentiments roman traduit de l'anglais (États-Unis) par Pierre Chénier

Éditions Jacqueline Chambon

Since a few years, segregation has declined and a lots of political parties and people have apologided. And, now, Blacks have the same rights as Whites.